

Everlasting Life

Diagnosis: Terminal
Daddy lies down on bed
Closes eyes
A voice comes from above
Wake up lad
Time to be glad
Go downstairs son
There awaits what you've won
A timeless piece
Beautiful, a small version of Niece
 A golden gift waits for you
 Inside you will find the words
 LIFE on a golden ticket
Sparkles
Glitters
Glow
 This golden ticket will
 Bring you to me
 One fine day
Small in size
Never gives up its prize
 The prize is life
 Everlasting
 A time will come
 You and I will reign
 Forevermore
Take it lad
Be glad
 For death can not quench you from me
 You have found me
 Our bond of faith never shall break

Climb Day Mountain, the mountain of glory that will be climbed
By you to me one fine day
You won't be tearful, for you will be with me again
 At this discovery of everlasting life

Many make recovery, recovery from:
Fear, Desolation, Anger, Violent Pasts, Sorrow, and many many more
Journey of today is a journey of life, that one fine day this journey is ending
Our wounds: poverty, violence acts, losing loved ones, will be mending
Sleep lad
Time to be glad
Once the morning sun breaks, we will be together
Father and son shall live together everlasting
Dream of me
For I am an example of someone to be:
I am compassionate, loving, helpful, and savior

Good night my son
Take my hand of life and remember you won
You won a place in heaven, your golden ticket
Don't be afraid for that one fine day is soon coming
Death shall not part you from me
It only shall part you from this place
Good night
I see you when you wake
You will wake up in a new home, a golden home, MY home